Greetings, Brothers and Sisters:

Solidarity is the key to the American labor movement. Solidarity at the work site. Solidarity on the picket line. Solidarity in the political front.

Organized labor has accomplished much that has benefited not only union members but the entire society. But there is much left to do, and the only way we can continue to achieve progressive change is through union solidarity.

And under the umbrella of the Massachusetts AFL-CIO, we are seeing that solidarity all over the state. That translates into more successful organizing drives, better contracts and increased political power.

The lessons of the past several years have clearly shown that we cannot afford anything less than unity and solidarity. But united, we are fighting back.

All that labor has achieved has come about because we have used our numbers, and counted on the commitment and the integrity of working men and women to struggle and win. We need all the strength we can muster to continue to fight.

The Massachusetts AFL-CIO represents more than 400,000 men and women. That is an army of people.

Utilizing this great army, there is nothing we can't accomplish. The wisdom and energy of the working men and women of this nation is limitless.

The strength of the labor movement lies in the solidarity of those men and women.

And with that solidarity comes pride. It is important that workers be proud of their union membership; be proud that they belong to strong and free trade unions; be proud to be a part of the AFL-CIO.

We can be justifiably proud of the many achievements labor has been able to attain, beginning with free public education hundreds of years ago and continuing today with our efforts to elect a Democrat as President.

Organized labor has a new momentum now, both nationally and here in Massachusetts. We have union solidarity, unity and pride.

Labor is a force to be reckoned with. That means that working men and women, union members, have power. And that can only lead to continued progress for workers and the entire country.

In Solidarity,

George Carpenter
Secretary-Treasurer
Massachusetts AFL-CIO

Greetings, Friends of Labor:

Whenever an organization takes bold, new initiatives, it leaves itself open to criticism and attack. The easiest thing in the world to do is lie low and let events pass you by.

Organized labor has chosen to take the initiative rather than lie low. And recent days have certainly proved that enemies of unionism were not at all pleased.

As we are on the verge of a watershed presidential election, those enemies have been highly critical of the AFL-CIO and its affiliates for the decision to endorse a candidate.

Almost unbelievably, though, that criticism has largely focused on labor as a so-called "special interest." The term itself contradicts what the American labor movement is all about.

What organization represents a more broad-based, diverse and varied constituency than the labor movement? We can count among our union members carpenters and clock-makers, plumbers and professors, sanitation workers and secretaries.

One need only look through this directory of Massachusetts AFL-CIO labor unions to see the healthy diversity that exists in the House of Labor.

I have to laugh at that special interest nonsense. We certainly have our interests and our issues, but they are broad and far-reaching, not narrow and parochial. In fact, a good many of labor's victories have benefited the entire society to a much greater degree than even union members.

Free public education, child labor protections, the minimum wage, Social Security and countless other victories were won with organized labor at the forefront. It is readily apparent that these gains have benefited men and women without union contracts at least as much as those who have union protection.

Those who don't believe society should be charged with such responsibilities also resist labor's efforts to win such gains.

In the 1984 election, those persons and organizations are clearly on one side of the fence, with organized labor with its friends and allies on the other.

In our political activities, in our coalition-building efforts, in our internal organizing, labor will make a joke of the special interest label. That mantle just doesn't fit. It is far too confining.

If some want to call concerns for economic and social justice a special interest, so be it. We in the labor movement will carry on.

In Solidarity,

Arthur Osborn, President
Massachusetts AFL-CIO

"BOSTON IS A MEETING PLANNER'S DREAM."

Sue White, Executive Vice President
Direct Marketing Association, Inc.
New York

"When we decided to establish a four-city rotation for the annual Direct Marketing Association's National Conference, we put Boston at the top of the list.

"Boston has always been one of my personal favorites . . . so much to see and do; first-class restaurants, charming historical streets, wonderful ethnic neighborhoods, and truly fine shops. But, quite frankly, I was astounded when I visited recently to find that it has also been transformed into a meeting planner's dream.

"The area around Copley Square is no less than extraordinary. I can't think of any other city in the country where you can find 5,000 deluxe hotel rooms a stone's throw from the major convention center, situated in a beautiful park-like area. And, all this is in the center of a major metropolis!

"What clinched the deal for DMA is the planned new Hynes Convention Center. The Center is the ideal facility for our extensive program and rapidly expanding exhibition."

Boston truly is a meeting planner's dream. That's why Sue White and the 5,000 members of the Direct Marketing Association are coming here.

In Boston and throughout Massachusetts, from the ocean to the mountains, there are luxurious accommodations and modern facilities to meet every planner's dream. To find out more about having your next meeting in Massachusetts, call or write MASSMEETINGS today. And Meet Me In Massachusetts.

WE'VE NEVER SOLD A LOSING TICKET.

It's a fact. Not one single losing ticket.

Since beginning in 1972, the Lottery has returned over $616,000,000 to the treasuries of the cities and towns of Massachusetts. And that money has done a lot of good for everyone. It's kept our highways well-lighted, developed social programs for the aged, even kept our parks and playgrounds clean.

So even if you don't play the Lottery, you're still way ahead. And if you do enjoy the Games, well, think of it this way: You know all those tickets that didn't match anything but the color of your socks? They're also winners.

That's why everyone is a winner in the Lottery.
